PET FOOD BANK POLICY

1. Assistance is limited to one application per household. Applications must be filled out completely in order to receive assistance.
2. Photo ID is required at time of pickup. Acceptable forms of ID include Hawaii Driver's License, Hawaii State ID, Honolulu Bus Pass, Passport, Food Warehouse Club Card and Hawaii State Library Card. Other forms of identification may be approved upon Hawaiian Humane Society staff discretion.
3. All information is kept confidential and not shared with anyone outside of the Hawaiian Humane Society.
4. The Hawaiian Humane Society Pet Food Bank is run solely via generous donations from the community, pet stores and the Hawaii Food Bank. Pet food is distributed when donations are available and is not intended to be the sole means of care. Hawaiian Humane cannot guarantee a 30-day supply and applicants may be limited to pickups once a month dependent on availability.
5. For health and other community benefit, pets benefiting from the program must be spayed or neutered, unless deemed unsafe due to age or other issues. Owners of pets that are not sterilized must receive education or information on sterilization. If owners are unable to spay/neuter pets due to income, Hawaiian Humane may provide a coupon for waived fee sterilizations if available. Hawaiian Humane staff may also contact applicant about spay/neuter services at a later date.
6. Participants of the Pet Food Bank program will not be eligible to adopt an animal from the Hawaiian Humane Society for 90 days after the last date of food pickup.
7. Cat colony caregivers, animal welfare, rescue or adoption organizations and distribution centers. such as churches or homeless shelter providers must receive advanced approval from the Manager of Community Outreach and Partnerships and arrange a pickup time. Colony caregivers must actively participate in TNRM to receive supplies. Animal welfare, rescue or adoption organizations and distribution centers must have 501c3 non-profit status. Ability to distribute to cat colony caregivers or outside organizations is based on available supplies at the time of request.
8. Brand or type of pet food cannot be guaranteed. All pet food is donated and comes from many places and many brands. Participants may receive a different brand and/or amount of pet food each time they come in. When receiving pet food from the Pet Food Bank, participants are aware of the potential risks involved with feeding pet(s) a new food, since it's unlikely the pet food received is the animal's usual brand.
9. By accepting food and/or services from the Hawaiian Humane Society Food Bank, all household members, their friends and family, agree not to hold the Food Bank, its staff, volunteers and beneficiaries legally liable in the unfortunate event pet(s) becomes ill or causes gastrointestinal distress.
10. Hawaiian Humane Society staff reserve the right to make exceptions based on individual need. Hawaiian Humane Society staff also reserves the right to refuse services based on violation of policies, ill treatment of staff or at their discretion.
